The Department of Public Health and Community Medicine has conducted a e-lecture on “Who is in charge of global health?” using Skype in the seminar hall, Periya campus, on 21st September 2017 between 3.00 PM - 4PM. Dr. Sridhar Venkatapuram, Senior Lecturer in Global Health and Philosophy, Department of Global Health and Social Medicine, King’s College, London has delivered the lecture. The lecture was conducted for Master of Public Health students (20).

Dr Venkatapuram discussed the changing global health scenario since the Bretton Woods Institutions (International Monetary Fund and the World Bank) were set up in 1944. He compressively addressed the changing role of World Health Organization from a leader to facilitator incorporating the corporates, nongovernmental organizations and philanthropists in planning and implementation of global health interventions.

Ms. Jaylakshmi Rajeev coordinated the event and delivered the vote of thanks.
